Market commentary

Shrugging off concerns about escalating coronavirus case numbers, Australian shares ended the calendar year on a high, gaining +2.8% in December.

Despite the positive overall performance, returns across the market varied considerably with investors favouring more 'value' style companies over 'growth' oriented stocks. Utilities and miners posted the strongest gains, surging +7.9% and +7.2% respectively. In contrast, technology companies were dragged lower (down -5.3%) on inflation fears and forecast interest rate rises.

Ramsay Health Care, Macquarie Group and Lynas Rare Earths all contributed positively to Argo's portfolio performance. Pleasingly, Argo's share price recently reached a new record high of $10.29.
